“ Some of the best memories I have is when we were little. She would run around with the fly swatter trying to catch us. And every birthday of ours her and dad made the best of it. She loved the beach trips that we took. But the best memory I have of her is when she held her first and only granddaughter in her hands. She had the biggest smile and loved being a new grandma. She was only 38 when she became one and her and dad's world revolved around that little baby girl. She didn't love us any less, but her heart grew so much that day. Mama I love and miss you but we are all okay , even the grandsons. Rest easy and I know you will always be looking down on us.

“ So live your life that the fear of death can never enter your heart. Trouble no one about their religion; respect others in their view, and demand that they respect yours. Love your life, perfect your life, beautify all things in your life. Seek to make your life long and its purpose in the service of your people. Prepare a noble death song for the day when you go over the great divide.
Always give a word or a sign of salute when meeting or passing a friend, even a stranger, when in a lonely place. Show respect to all people and grovel to none. When you arise in the morning give thanks for the food and for the joy of living. If you see no reason for giving thanks, the fault lies only in yourself. Abuse no one and no thing, for abuse turns the wise ones to fools and robs the spirit of its vision. When it comes your time to die, be not like those whose hearts are filled with the fear of death, so that when their time comes they weep and pray for a little more time to live their lives over again in a different way. Sing your death song and die like a hero going home.
~ Tecumseh

Rest now momma, we're all OK.
